

Written by LadyCCC

Tuesday, 16 March 2010 00:00 - Last Updated Wednesday, 17 March 2010 22:51

Where do I begin???

So much has happened in last few months so I have not had time to blog. (i know slack aren't I). Well it is all good. The business has grown in leaps and bounds. We have more staff sitting hand cutting your precious little critters. I am making the web designer pull his hair out with all the new things we will be adding and last but not least I want to welcome a new Blogger. We will call her CCC Blog Queen. She has knowledge, wit and a dedication to the english language that seems to escape me when I am busy designing and tending to customers.

The new things coming soon are:

Vinyl 3D butterflies in solid colours with clear wings that just look stunning and will help all those brides who have craved white, glitter silver and gold. We will release them in lots of new colours as time goes on.

New Colours for our brides and room decor: See below at all our yummy new colours. Till I get site updated if you are looking for any of these colours you can just order through email.

Another new item I am working on is "Wallies" yes the coloured vinyl decals for walls, windows and anywhere that need some colourful decoration.

Well enough for now as I am blogged out and I have to leave some gossip for our new blogger to ramble on about :)

Just as an ending note" Thank you so much to my loyal customers who have kept ordering, had such complimentary words that have kept us inspired and dedicated to keep on designing, hand cutting and servicing our clients.